

Since the invention of the mouse digital technologies have permitted an increasing range of naturalistic interactions

MoTEC

Cognitive scientists study how perception, cognition, anatomy, and physical/social context influence movement

MoTEC will allow for development of research-based teaching in measurement and modeling of cognitive and social processes related to object manipulation and interactive movement